Product-Specific Risks

You are exposed to Equities Risk

- The value of stocks may fluctuate, sometimes dramatically, in response to the activities and results of individual companies or because of general market and economic conditions or other events.

You are exposed to Investments in Medium and Small Sized Firms Risks

- There may be limited opportunities to find alternative ways of managing cash flows because of the relatively illiquid nature of markets in small and medium sized companies' shares. The share prices of such companies generally are more volatile than those of larger companies; the shares are often less liquid and these companies may be subject to more abrupt fluctuations in market price than larger, more established companies. Investments in shares of companies with smaller market capitalisations are generally considered to offer greater opportunity for appreciation but also may involve greater risks than customarily associated with more established companies as they are generally more likely to be adversely affected by poor economic or market conditions.

You are exposed to Derivatives Risk

- The use of financial derivative instruments may give rise to leverage, liquidity, counterparty and valuations risks at times. In adverse situations, the Sub-Fund's use of derivative instruments may become ineffective and the Sub-Fund may suffer significant losses.
